Tragic accident at the port of El Musel . A 56-year-old man, José Antonio Sesmilo, died this morning while carrying out coal discharge tasks . The event took place around 10 am this morning. The deceased worked as a docker in the port of Gijón.

The causes of death are unknown but everything seems to indicate that the death occurred due to a blow with one of the great machines that work in El Musel.

According to the first investigations, everything seems to indicate that the man died after receiving a heavy blow with the spoon of a crane while giving indications of how to operate.

The event took place at the Olano pier, while Sesmilo worked in the Arklow Value ship's hold.

After the event, a large device was deployed that included a mobile UVI, fire department or port police, among others.
