

Operator died after a heavy machinery fell on him in the Port Society of Barranquilla

April 11, 2022

It was an occupational accident where a worker inside the Port Society of Barranquilla lost his life. He was 24 years old and passed away at around 3 pm on Saturday.

The first information obtained by some of the victim's relatives indicates that they received a call from one of the Solmarin company engineers, who told them that Jeiner Jesús Santamaría Maestre had suffered an accident, in which his left leg would have been fractured.

Jeiner was helped and transferred from the company's warehouses to the emergency area at the La Victoria Clinic, where relatives approached and learned that he had been crushed from the abdomen to the lower limbs, due to the fall of an electrical coil.

The work accident is recorded at a time when Jeiner was working in yard 11 of the Port Society. Jeiner Santamaría Maestre died at 3:30 in the morning this Sunday, according to what was confirmed by the medical body.

The young man worked at the company as a heavy machine operator and lived in the Villa Esperanza neighborhood of Malambo.
