

The driver of the Qingshui container truck was "run over by a stacker" and his legs were broken and he died

Zhongtian News Network

Monday, May 8, 2023

An industrial safety accident was reported at the port container yard in Qingshui District, Taichung City! At a container yard on Gangbu Road, Qingshui District, Taichung City today (8th) at 3 pm, a container truck driver surnamed Zhan was run over by a stacker while walking in the yard. Zhan Nan's legs were broken on the spot, and he was sent to the hospital and died.

An industrial safety accident was reported at the port container yard in Qingshui District, Taichung City. (Photo/provided by the public)

According to the Labor Inspection Office of Taichung City, a man surnamed Zhan employed by a transportation company went through the procedure of claiming containers at the container yard in Qingshui District at 3:00 p.m. today. The forklift driven by the driver hit the ground, causing both of Zhan Nan's legs to be broken. He was sent to Wuqi Tong Tong General Hospital and died after first aid. The Taichung City Labor Inspection Office has sent personnel to the scene for investigation.

The Taichung City Labor Inspection Office stated that the case is currently under investigation. If any violations of the Occupational Safety and Health Law are found, the work will be suspended for improvement, and a fine of more than NT$30,000 to less than NT$300,000 will be imposed.