Port worker dies hospitalized after suffering an accident in Puerto Coronel...

Leaders of the Port Union of Chile, gathered in Punta Arenas, made a minute of silence....

Puerto Coronel, Chile November 7, 2018...

The Port Union of Chile reported that worker Josué Nixon Gajardo finally died, despite having undergone surgery and beginning his period of post-operative recovery.

Guajardo, 53 years old, fell -for causes that are investigated- from a height of two meters when he performed work in a pulp mill inside Puerto Coronel.

The accident caused him a head and a nasal fracture, being referred to the Hospital of the Worker of Concepción, where he was operated on. After the operation, Nixon began his postoperative recovery period, remaining under observation for 48 hours due to the severity of his injuries and complexity of the medical procedure to which he was subjected.

The leaders of the Port Union of Chile , meeting in Punta Arenas, presented the information during the National Congress that takes place in the southern city, where they made a minute of silence. "Once again we lost a colleague in a work accident in Puerto Coronel yesterday. Nixon Gajardo 53 years old suffered an accident yesterday, Tuesday 06 November, and today he died hospitalized, "said the Port Union through their social networks. ...
