A dramatic event rocked the Croton community, where 37-year-old worker Fabio Coreali lost his life in circumstances that have not yet been explained. The accident occurred while the man was doing his duties on board a ship, after completing the unloading of wood chips, a basic material for vital power plants in the region. This news has caused great emotion among colleagues and family members, who are now waiting for answers about the causes of this premature death.

Circumstances of death

According to initial reconstructions, Fabio Coriali was in the ship's cargo hold, and after completing his work, he was talking to some of his colleagues. And suddenly the worker on collapsed, leaving everyone speechless. The causes of death are still unknown, but he is likely to have contracted an illness. Emergency services were immediately alerted to the situation, but unfortunately there was nothing that could be done.

Investigations are underway

Following the accident, he ordered an autopsy to explain the causes of death. The investigation is currently pledged to the Crotone Port Authority, which is trying to rebuild the dynamics of what happened. This tragic event brings back attention to safety in the workplace, especially in high-risk sectors such as ports. The local community gathers around the Fabio family waiting to know more details about what happened.
