The AMP reported that the workers belong to a subcontractor company of auxiliary services

The Ministry of Labor and Labor Development (Mitradel) and the Panama Maritime Authority (AMP) began an investigation into the work accident in which one worker died and another was injured at the port of Panama International Terminal (PSA), located at the entrance to the Pacific of the Panama Canal.

Mitradel and the AMP also work "in close" collaboration in this case with the officials of the Attorney General's Office

According to Mitradel, the work accident occurred this Saturday, February 15, in the South Pier sector of the PSA port terminal.

Meanwhile, the AMP revealed this Sunday, February 16, that the investigation of the case is carried out with the collaboration of the concessionaire company.

The AMP reported that the workers belong to a subcontractor of auxiliary services and the work accident occurred while they were performing "daily maneuvers in the port."

"Mitradel inspectors went to the port to carry out an investigation in order to clarify the circumstances of the incident. During the intervention, we sought to ensure that the process progressed with transparency and take the necessary measures to prevent similar situations in the future," the entity said in a statement.

In the statement, the Mitradel highlighted that the port has its own team of security officers, who also play a role in the supervision of activities and security in the place.

"Mitradel calls on employers and workers to take the corresponding corrective actions, in order to avoid sanctions and above all, reduce occupational risks," the entity emphasized in its statement.
