

It was his last day! Port worker died crushed by a truck

Local authorities were present at the scene to investigate the causes of the accident.

Stefany Beatriz Guzmán Nuñez 12/14/2025 12:26 PM

A tragic work accident ended the life of a port worker on his last day of work in the port of Vila do Conde, Brazil.

According to initial reports, the man was crushed by a truck loaded with kaolin that overturned while he was fulfilling his final working day, after having submitted his resignation.

Witnesses to the accident reported that the worker was carrying out his usual activities when the vehicle overturn occurred, causing the tragedy.

Local authorities were present at the scene to investigate the causes of the accident, while the company responsible for the port and the logistics operation has initiated internal procedures to clarify the facts and provide support to the victim's family.